Tabb High School Class of 2012
Bound for East Carolina University
Music Therapy Major

Andrew Fallacara graduated from Tabb High School this year with the honor of being the 2012 Joseph H. Levi Memorial Scholarship recipient.

In keeping with the criteria for the scholarship, Andrew is an accomplished scholar-athlete. He had the pleasure and privilege of having Joe Levi as his tennis coach for two of the four seasons that he played on the Tabb Varsity Tennis team. In his essay, Andrew recalled how Coach Levi inspired him both on the court and off. He says, "He was not only a coach to me, but a symbol of respect and happiness. Coach Levi truly loved the life he was given, and he inspired me to do the same."

In addition to Varsity Tennis, Andrew had a demanding schedule in high school taking advanced placement classes, and being a member and section leader of the award winning Tabb Marching Band for four years. Andrew has the talent and ability to play three instruments including guitar, bass guitar, and trumpet. He is a member of a Youth Choir and participates in that weekly. In his free time, Andrew composes music. His love of music has led him to majoring in music therapy at East Carolina University this fall.

Andrew has spent more than 100 hours volunteering to help the less fortunate through his participation in the Appalachian Service Project, which he has done for the past three years. The Appalachian Service Project is a Christian ministry that inspires hope and service through volunteer home repair in Central Appalachia. Andrew served as a Youth Leader during his service with this organization. Recently, Andrew also had the opportunity to serve others at Port Shelter, a local shelter for the homeless.

Andrew's proud parents are John and Sharon Fallacara of Yorktown.

Best of luck at East Carolina University
